

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-John Kerry documentary days before the general election is a clear example of the dangers of a bias media and a clear example of electioneering which is prohibited by a corporation.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. If Sinclair Broadcasting wants to purchase the airwaves like a cable station, it can be as bias as it pleases. At least the public's right to the airwaves is not jeopardized.

Thank you.
